Saura J. Sahu specializes in complex class action, multi-party and single-party litigation in matters ranging from employee benefits law and employment discrimination to wage and hour issues. In the criminal defense practice area he assists with felony and misdemeanor litigation from pre-charge investigation through trial and appeal.

EXPERIENCE

Saura represented an internationally renowned medical scientist in a lengthy felony trial. He also served as counsel on multi-state class action litigation to resolve federal questions concerning employees' rights relating to the modification of retirement benefits. In another case, Saura "second-chaired" under a nationally prominent defense counsel and former American Bar Association trial lawyer of the year.
