Douglas W. Eyre represents OEMs, automotive suppliers, banking institutions and secured creditors in all aspects of commercial foreclosures and workouts involving real estate and personal property, such as out-of-court workouts, bankruptcy, and federal and state court litigation proceedings. He represents owners and contractors in commercial construction disputes and litigates trade secret and non-compete cases. Doug also has tried matters concerning misappropriation of trade secrets, recovery of secured collateral and breach of contract.

"I believe in diligently pursuing my clients' interests, being honest in all dealings with the court, opposing counsel and witnesses, and giving forthright advice to my clients. This helps me provide the best possible result to my clients at the least cost."

EXPERIENCE

On the eve of trial, Doug negotiated a resolution in a pro bono foreclosure case vacating an eviction order and permitting an 85-year-old retiree to keep his home.

"I've collected seven-figure judgments for other clients, but nothing is as personally rewarding as allowing someone to keep the house where they have raised a family and lived for half a century."
