With over 30 years of trial experience in federal and state courts throughout the country, Mr. Dickie has successfully resolved jury and non-jury cases involving a variety of business and commercial matters, construction, securities, product liability and professional liability claims.

While in college, Mr. Dickie played varsity football. In law school, he served as law clerk to the Honorable Hubert L. Will, U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, and taught constitutional law at DePaul University. In addition, he attended Exeter College in Oxford, England.

EXPERIENCE

Dean's trial experience has been diverse and extensive. He has tried cases to judgment and verdict throughout the U.S. He has represented officers, directors, and corporations in a variety of matters including securities fraud, insider trading, breach of fiduciary duty, accounting malpractice, Securities Exchange arbitration, usurpation of corporate opportunities and employment discrimination claims. He has extensive jury trial experience in all kinds of intellectual property matters, construction litigation, professional and product liability claims, first party insurance litigation, including bad faith claims against the carriers, and class action matters representing both defendants and the class.
