Larry J. Saylor litigates complex business disputes in state and federal courts throughout the country, and in domestic and international arbitration. He handles antitrust, trade secret, consumer protection, franchising, and dealer law matters, including class actions, injunctions, and appeals. He has resolved highly technical matters involving computer software, pharmaceuticals, health care, and product design. Larry also counsels clients on antitrust, franchising and dealer law issues, and acts as an arbitrator and mediator. He is an adjunct professor at University of Detroit Mercy School of Law, where he teaches a course on franchising and dealer law. Larry served as chair of the Antitrust, Franchising and Trade Regulation Section of the State Bar of Michigan and Article Editor of the Michigan Law Review, and writes and speaks regularly on antitrust, franchising, business torts, and arbitration.

"To get the best results for my clients, I strive to make complicated legal and factual issues simple so I – and a judge or a jury – can understand them."

Larry J. Saylor

In a case that made front-page news, Larry served as co-counsel for a major computer company involved in a billion-dollar-plus dispute with a rival over antitrust and intellectual property claims. The case was successfully settled.

EXPERIENCE

Before joining the firm, Larry was Law Clerk to The Honorable George E. MacKinnon, United States Court of Appeals, D.C. Circuit.
