The Illinois Biometric Information Privacy Act was passed to protect the immutable biological identifiers that are increasingly used in commercial and financial transactions, and has in recent years become a fertile ground for class action litigation. On this panel, Jay Edelson of Edelson P.C. and Debra Bernard of Perkins Coie LLP will present perspectives from both sides of the "v." on the BIPA, its application to consumer class actions, and where litigation surrounding the statute will go from here.

Speakers:

Jay Edelson, Edelson P.C.
Debra R. Bernard, Perkins Coie LLP
