Mr. Leitman serves as co-chair of the Criminal Practice Committee of the Federal Bar Association.

The best way to protect your company from criminal liability is to learn the factors that prosecutors consider when deciding whether to file charges against corporate entities – and to then learn how to best position your company with respect to each of those factors. To further minimize your company's criminal exposure, you should understand the steps your company can take now to lessen criminal penalties in the unfortunate event of a criminal violation. Our experienced corporate criminal defense attorneys will give you the critical information you need to protect your company.

With a combined fifty-five years experience in criminal defense and prosecution, they bring extensive expertise in the areas of white collar criminal practice, corporate compliance, and complex litigation.
